Acknowledgments

This book would not have been possible without the help and support of many different individuals and institutions. It grew out of my PhD dissertation, which I completed in 2017 at the Institute of Fine Arts, New York University, and is a much revised and expanded version of my initial study on the prisoner statues. I would like to thank my dissertation advisor, David O'Connor, and the members of my committee, Ann Macy Roth, Ogden Goelet, and Marsha Hill, who provided endless advice and support throughout both the dissertation process and far beyond it.

My research was generously supported by a fellowship from the American Research Center in Egypt (funded by the U.S. Department of State Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs), a Francis Haskell Memorial Fund scholarship from the Burlington Magazine, and several grants from the Institute of Fine Arts and New York University. Portions of the book were written while I was a postdoctoral fellow in the Department of Near Eastern Studies at The Johns Hopkins University, an Andrew W. Mellon Research Fellow in the Department of Egyptian Art at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and the W. Benson Harer Egyptology Scholar in Residence at California State University, San Bernardino. My sincere thanks go to these institutions and all of my friends and colleagues within them for their support and help.

I am indebted to Philippe Collombert and the Mission archéologique franco-suisse de Saqqâra (MAFS) for graciously permitting me to use all of the MAFS' archival records on the Pepi I prisoner statues and for inviting me to join the team in 2015 so that I could study and document the unpublished fragments in their storeroom. I am also grateful to the Supreme Council of Antiquities for granting me permission to conduct my research in Egypt. Throughout this project, I visited many museums and archives, and I would like to acknowledge the various curators, directors, and archivists who welcomed me to their institutions and assisted me. I am also grateful to those institutions for allowing me to publish the materials that I collected during my visits. In this regard, my sincere thanks go to Isadora Rogger and the Musée d'ethnographie in Neuchâtel; Patrizia Piacentini, Christian Orsenigo, and the Egyptological Library and Archives at the Università degli Studi di Milano; Mahmud El Halwagy and the Egyptian Museum in Cairo; Assayed el Banna and the Suez National Museum; Dr. Sanaa and the Luxor Museum; Nadia Khider and the Alexandria National Museum; Tarek Tawfiq and the Grand Egyptian Museum; the Military Museum at the Cairo Citadel; Emad Khadter and the Imhotep Museum in Saqqara; Mohamed Hassan Abdel Fattah and the SCA Documentation Center; Nadine Cherpion and the Institut français d'archéologie orientale; Luc Delvaux and the Musées Royaux d'Art et d'Histoire, Brussels; Klaus Finneiser and the Ägyptisches Museum und Papyrussammlung, Berlin; the Department of Ancient Egypt & Sudan at the British Museum; Cat Warsi and the Griffith Institute, University of Oxford; Edward Bleiburg, Yekaterina Barbash, and the Brooklyn Museum; Sheldon Cheek and the Image of the Black Archive & Library at the Hutchins Center, Harvard University; Denise Doxey and the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston; and Nancy Thomas and the Los Angeles County Museum of Art.

The scope of this book would not have been possible without the help of numerous individuals who aided me in locating prisoner statue fragments and archival records, and I appreciate all who answered my inquiries and emails. I am indebted to Mohamed Megahed for generously sharing his research with me and for all of the interesting conversations on Djedkare. I am also grateful to conservators Anna Serotta and Ann Heywood, Metropolitan Museum of Art, and Michele Marincola, Institute of Fine Arts, for teaching me more about the qualities of limestone and discussing the condition of the prisoner statues with me. Indeed, my thanks go to all of my colleagues who have discussed the prisoner statues with me over the years. Niv Allon, Kate Liszka, Marion Mazzone, Barry Stiefel, Mary Beth Heston, Mary Trent, and Brigit Ferguson graciously read portions of this book and provided valuable feedback. Moreover, I am indebted to two anonymous reviewers who read chapters at an early phase and provided useful commentary that enabled me to reimagine the manuscript in extremely productive and beneficial ways. Christina Geisen and Joshua Roberson were enthusiastic about this book from the start, and I am grateful to them and Billie Jean Collins for guiding it through the publication process. I would also like to thank my colleagues at the College of Charleston for all of their encouragement and support.

I am very lucky to be surrounded by incredible friends and family, who have always been willing to listen to me talk about the prisoner statues and have provided constant inspiration and reassurance. This is particularly true for Sheela Prakash and Jason Barr, who may have had to hear about the prisoner statues the most! Finally, I am so thankful to my mother and father for all that they taught me and have done for me. I dedicate this book to them.
